The past decade has seen a large increase in the delivery of Social and Therapeutic Horticulture for the improved quality of life for people from all sectors of society.

This National networking day is being held to showcase a number of projects from around the country together with a variety of practical demonstrations. Of equal importance, we are keen to develop a shared vision with all interested people and parties to help shape the future of Social and Therapeutic Horticulture in Ireland.

We will have a range of speakers, many of them practitioners, to share their experiences of Social and Therapeutic Horticulture as well as the research behind it and who can benefit from it!
